The orientation programme conducted before commencement of the teaching programme helps in understanding the overall programme. The interaction of the individual teachers with students in the class paves a way to understand their level, helps the teacher in modification of the teaching methodology and to suit the learner needs and enhances their level of understanding.

The performance of students in the first three or four weekly tests which are a part of continuous evaluation also helps in getting an understanding of the requirements of students. Using the learning management system, performance of each student is assessed and then students are categorized into advanced, normal and slow learners.

Every week two theory and one practical exam are conducted and the performance is assessed by departmental/ subject in-charge and feedback is given within two days so that students are able to improve their performance. Motivation is given to the students by means of verbal praise, giving certificate of honour and gold medal.
